❖ Executive pay cuts from the CG perspective

Who could have imagined that within a span of slightly more than three years in the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic, the market capitalisation of Top Glove Corporation Bhd (Top Glove) would nosedive almost 90% from the peak of RM74.03 billion on 13 October 2020 when the world's largest glove maker briefly became the second largest listed company on Bursa Malaysia after Maybank.

However, the rapid ascent was short-lived as the global vaccination exercise on a massive scale, coupled with a rapid decline in COVID-19 cases, eventually took a heavy toll on demand for gloves till the sector was brought down to its knees, as evident from Top Glove's market capitalisation of RM7.4 billion today.

Doubtlessly, Top Glove was not alone in this financial predicament as all Big Four glovemakers on the local bourse – Hartalega Holdings Berhad, Kossan Rubber Industries Berhad and Supermax Corporation Bhd – also faced a similar pattern of decline.

The top leads by example

Amid the projection of a slow market rebound and stiff competition-cum-price war (particularly from Chinese glove players), it is therefore commendable that Top Glove's board nomination and remuneration committee (BNRC) had in June 2023 recommended to the Board to accept a pay cut of additional 15% in the proposed directors' fee for the financial year ended 31 August 2023.

To recap, the Board had in its FY2022 undertaken a 10% reduction in the directors' fee due to the challenging business environment post-pandemic.

Subsequently, the Board unanimously agreed to the pay cut, and shareholders duly approved the proposal during its AGM on 10 January 2024. Meanwhile, the Board Committees' fees remain unchanged for FY2023.

In tandem with the spirit of leadership by example, Top Glove's executive chairman, Tan Sri Dr Lim Wee Chai, continued to accept a 30% salary cut, which took effect on 1 August 2022 in response to a plunge in the company's financial performance during this challenging period.

For the record, Lim's entire pay package totalled RM2.72 million, comprised of a salary of RM2.27 million plus other fringe benefits, while the remuneration of managing director Lim Cheong Guan stood at RM997,000 (salary of RM747,000 plus fringe benefits).

"However, with the continual unsatisfactory performance of the group, TS Lim has voluntarily further reduced his salary by 20% this year (2023)," noted Top Glove's Corporate Governance Report 2023.

"He was joined by senior management staff who also were seeing salary cuts ranging from 10% to 20% in the quest to enable Top Glove to ride out the storm."

It is worthwhile noticing that Top Glove ended its FY2023 in the red with a gargantuan net loss of RM926.64 million from a net profit position of RM222.56 million a year earlier. At the same time, its revenue plummeted almost 60% to RM2.26 billion for FY2023 from RM5.57 billion a year earlier.

However, the good news is that despite remaining in the red for the first quarter that ended 30 November 2023 in FY2024, Top Glove's net loss narrowed to RM57.71 million from RM168.24 million previously, although its revenue was still 22% lower from the previous corresponding period at RM493.46 million (Q1FY2023: RM632.53 million).

Moving forward, Top Glove expects to turn profitable by FY2025) on the back of an improved utilisation rate.

Symbolic, but it matters

It is not unusual to see directors, CEOs, and senior management taking voluntary pay cuts when companies' financial performance is badly hit during crises.

For instance, a news report pointed out previously that head honchos of about half (16 CEOs) of the top 30 Bursa Malaysia-listed companies (by market capitalisation) received lower compensation when the COVID-19 pandemic struck in 2020¹.

Of the 16 CEOs who took a pay cut, four had a cut of more than 25%, eight experienced a cut of more than 10%, two had a cut of less than 10%, and only two had a cut of less than 5%. The extent of the pay cut ranged between 0.21% and 45.48%.

Generally, the large bonuses paid to head honchos were based on the financial performance in the previous year; the impact would only be reflected in the financial statements of the current financial year.

In the context of the COVID-19 pandemic, if a CEO were to receive substantial bonus payouts tied to the company's 2019 performance, it could have detrimental repercussions for its reputation. This situation not only fails to demonstrate compassion and empathy from the leadership but also carries the risk of causing considerable reputational damage, particularly as workers grapple with income losses during these challenging times.

On another note, executive pay cuts are more of a signal to the public and employees than a cost-saving move to prevent worker layoffs. The gesture shows those companies are taking stakeholders' perceptions and viewpoints into consideration.

All in all, the cut of executive pay, while largely a symbolic gesture, reflects the accountability among senior executives and reinforces the idea that leaders are willing to take responsibility for their performance. Ultimately, it demonstrates a commitment to ethical leadership, responsible management, and the long-term interests of the company and its stakeholders.
