Programme Overview

As sustainability reporting and corporate governance frameworks evolve across Asia, investor expectations are shifting from commitments and disclosure towards credible implementation, measurable outcomes and accountability. Drawing on practical engagement experience and case studies from Malaysia and other Asian markets, this programme explores how institutional investors assess corporate sustainability and governance practices, identify gaps between policies and performance, and use stewardship to encourage long-term value creation.

Key Focus Areas

- Evolving investor expectations in Malaysia and Asia
- Credibility of sustainability commitments and transition strategies
- Board accountability and governance effectiveness
- Practical investor stewardship and shareholder engagement
- Translating disclosure and commitments into measurable outcomes

Delivery Format

- Half-day virtual training (approximately four hours, including a break)
- Presentations and interactive discussions
- Asia-focused case studies and practical investor engagement examples
- Short case exercise and Q&A

Part 1 | 9.00 am – 10.15 am

The Changing Sustainability and Corporate Governance Landscape in Asia

Trainer's Profile

Nana Li

Nana Li leads Impax's sustainability research, stewardship strategy and policy advocacy across Asia-Pacific, overseeing analysis, engagement priorities and regulatory dialogue while advancing proprietary frameworks. She joined Impax in 2022 from the Asian Corporate Governance Association (ACGA), where she served as Research and Project Director, authored flagship governance reports and chaired the China Working Group, a role she continues alongside her consultancy to ACGA. A recognised thought leader, Nana speaks at global forums, contributes to policy discussions and engages widely with regulators, investors and academia. She co-authored Unlocking Corporate Success by the Power of Diversity (2024) and wrote Navigating Sustainability in Asia. In 2025, she received the ICGN Excellence in Stewardship Award, the first Asian recipient. She holds an MBA (Honors) from Chicago, a Master of Finance from HKU and is a CFA charterholder.
